Message from the Principal:

Thank you to the families who came to the school Busy Bee. They worked very hard for 2 hours and completed the talking circle, painted pine posts around the school, tidied the nature play area and moved bark chips in the playground.

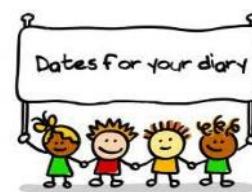

The Kindy renovations are making great progress. We will be moving into the new facility at the end of the term and commencing the Preschool learning program at the start of term 3. During week 10 we will be looking for some parent helpers to move, further information will be sent out closer to the moving day.

This term the Breakfast Program has been ran by parents. Thank you to those who have already given up an hour of their Tuesday morning and come in and served breakfast. This program could not continue without volunteers each week, if you have some spare time and would like to help out please let us know, we are looking for parents in weeks 8, 9 and 10.

This year for KidsMatter day in term 4 we would like to decorate the friendship tree with knitted art. If you have any old knitted scarves or would like to knit a panel that could be included it would be much appreciated. Children can also do Tom Boy stitching which can be included. Please drop any donations into the school office.

Sandra Spencer

Our School	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Did you know that the students at our school are environmentally proactive. Over the last couple of years they have established worm farms, and a compost area, they also collect 10 cent containers and food scraps as well as bringing nude food to school. As a result we now put out less rubbish bin to be collected for landfill each week.</li> </ul>

About emotional development

Children's emotional development

Emotional development is a complex task that begins in infancy and continues into adulthood. The first emotions that can be recognised in babies include joy, anger, sadness and fear. Later, as children begin to develop a sense of self, more complex emotions like shyness, surprise, elation, embarrassment, shame, guilt, pride and empathy emerge. Primary school children are still learning to identify emotions, to understand why they happen and how to manage them appropriately. As children develop, the things that provoke their emotional responses change, as do the strategies they use to manage them.

Very young children's emotions are mainly made up of physical reactions and behaviours. As they grow, children develop the ability to recognise feelings. Their emotions are also increasingly influenced by their thinking. They become more aware of their own feelings and better able to recognise and understand other people's. thus, an emotional reaction of a 10-year-old is likely to be far more complex than that of a three-year-old.

The experience of emotion includes several components: Physical responses, Feelings that children recognise and learn to name, Thoughts and judgements associated with feelings, Action signals.

Many things influence the ways that children express emotions, both through words and behaviour. These influences include: Values and beliefs, how effectively children's emotional needs are usually met, Children's temperaments, emotional behaviours and children have learned through observations or experience.

FAIRWELL ANITA

The F/1 Class have been very lucky to have Anita Smith doing a university placement in the F/1 class for the last 4 weeks. Miss Tess and the kids have loved having her in the class. We wish Anita all the very best with her studies.

MEDICATION

If your child requires medication for an ongoing medical condition, the medication must be clearly labelled and accompanied by a letter or care plan from your doctor. If you need to send medication to school with your child for a 'one off' course of treatment, eg antibiotics, this also must be clearly labelled and accompanied with a letter from your doctor.

A big thank you to Kalo Sunset for visiting our school on Friday 25th May. The students were very interested in learning how the ambulance works, and what an ambo does at an emergency.
